Preliminary programme

CONFERENCE AIM

The aim of this international conference is to give a voice to those professionals who work in different parts of the world with marginalized families and communities.

The organizers are mostly family therapists, teachers and supervisors in the field of the so-called helping professions.

We would like to create a context in which the professionals in the trenches would present their ideas and their experiences, while well-known therapists and conference participants will listen and debate the presenters' work.

By giving voice and space to unknown professionals coming from different parts of the globe, with very varied socio-political and economic conditions, we would like to enlarge our vision and knowledge on how to help marginalized families and communities.

By doing this, we really hope to start transforming the process of increasing conformity to Western hemispherical dominant ideas in the field of the helping professions to a new appreciation of diversity and singularities in ideas, socio-political situations, families, and community values.

Participants would get a new look at original and creative forms of intervention and different ways of creating resources and solutions to individual and family problems.

Special guest:
Salvador Minuchin
through a video interview

We would like to honour the work and the ideas of Salvador Minuchin, who enlightened the professional/personal development of many
